Material change definition

“Material change” means a significant deviation, in one or more aspects, from the offering as approved by the Department, including a change in curriculum, course length, textbooks, workbooks, syllabi, or method of presentation, but not including changes designed exclusively to reflect recent changes in statutes, regulations or decisional law.

If you have made a material change to the previously approved offering, do not complete this renewal application. You must submit a new application, fee, and all offering material as with an original application.

Final examination requirements

Live course offerings (with the exception of Ethics, Agency, Trust Fund Handling, and Fair Housing) do not require a final examination as part of the course offering.

All correspondence courses must have a final examination administered as part of the offering. In addition, both live and correspondence courses in the categories of Ethics, Agency, Trust Fund Handling, and Fair Housing require a final examination.

The course sponsor can set the passing score on final examinations, however, it may not be below 60%.

Current and up-to-date course material

The course sponsor is responsible for making sure the course material presented to the student is current and up-to-date. Sponsor should review the course material and make any necessary changes to the statutes, regulations, or decisional law cited in the material.

Changes to course material to only update statutes, regulations, or decisional law do not constitute a “material change” to the offering. (See material change definition above.)
